

KMG Global Crew

KMG Global Crew is a directory for specialist crews working across natural history filmmaking. This crew suggestion service supports production companies to work more efficiently and sustainably when looking for specialist skill sets, and crews based in or already working on location.

KMG works with topside and underwater DoP's camera operators, assistants, drone pilots, and also safety support.

How it works

The KMG Global Crew directory holds detailed profiles with information about individual crew members including location, skills and experience, CV's and showreel where relevant. All crew members are vetted and references can be provided.

When looking for crew, productions contact KMG via email with details of what they are looking for. All information is kept confidential and NDA's can be signed where requested.

Where suitable crew are found, KMG will pass on their details for the production company to then get directly in contact, and KMG is no longer involved. If suitable crew are not found, KMG will keep in touch with the production to suggest any new suitable crew who join KMG. Crew are alerted to say their information has been passed to a production, but never with details as to who to maintain production confidentiality.

An exciting feature of KMG Global Crew is the potential to shoot share crew members. Should the location, skill set and dates work, KMG will work with the production companies to share the talent (maintaining confidentiality at all times), thereby reducing travel and environmental costs.

Key Features of KMG Global Crew

- KMG has a custom designed app for crew to input highly detailed information on their skills, experience, qualifications, kit, area and species specialisms, etc.
- References / credits are required from crew
- This platform is carefully managed and KMG keeps in touch with crews to ensure all information is kept updated
- The KMG crew app has a locations calendar which crew can update for upcoming work to enable KMG to explore shoot shares
- Crew call-outs - when productions are looking for something more specific, KMG can help with confidential call-out emails to KMG crew. For example, where a production might be looking for great hammerhead filming locations for feeding behaviours, KMG can email relevant crew with information as dictated by the production, without referring to who the production are. This enables KMG to reach out across the Global Crew network to connect productions with crew who might be able to help. KMG Crew call-out emails are only ever sent at the request of the production, and information is passed back to the production to get directly in contact with crew.

Fees

There are no fees! This is a completely free service for production to use, as crew members pay a subscription fee to be part of the directory.
